yes, that is what I meant.

e.g., I can make a draft page for you to show them.

Take a look at the Japan site I just linked to. I think we'll need a date stamp on these as we move forward. So, yes the page title needs to be updated etc.

Let's get the skeleton in place and hang this on it. It should be straightforward enough for Tim to follow.

When you ask how to make it happen, do you need me to chase down pre-approval?

This page

<http://www2.epa.gov/goldkingmine/epa-statement-colorado-data-gold-king-mine-release> is posted but it isn't linked anywhere.

This SHOULD be linked, otherwise people won't ever find it.

ALSO & BETTER, it's not named right. It should also be re-cast as Colorado data, August 5-9, not as an "EPA statement" (that's just the intro). This also sets us up for future data sets.

how can I make this happen?
